

Application: Internal framed or silicone jointed glazing systems providing privacy, fire protection, acoustic separation or security.

Office Refurbishment; Education; Health; New Build; Leisure; Retail.

Glass is used in buildings to provide a wide range of functions. When incorporated into a suitable framing system, it can provide safety, comfort or even protection against fire.

Internal partitions can be designed to create new space on existing floors and improve internal fire separation.

Natural daylight can be utilised to good effect when full glass partitions are used in open office areas.

Fendor have a range of products to meet most applications.