

Application: Suspended glass assemblies providing smoke control in conjunction with a BMS

London Underground and The Bullring

In buildings with large open space, controlling smoke movement is paramount to the safety of the occupants.

The use of glass provides clear areas at ceiling level. The downstand screens are used to trap and move smoke within reservoirs to enable the extract system to vent the building.